

Global Temperature Correlates With Hurricane Occurrence

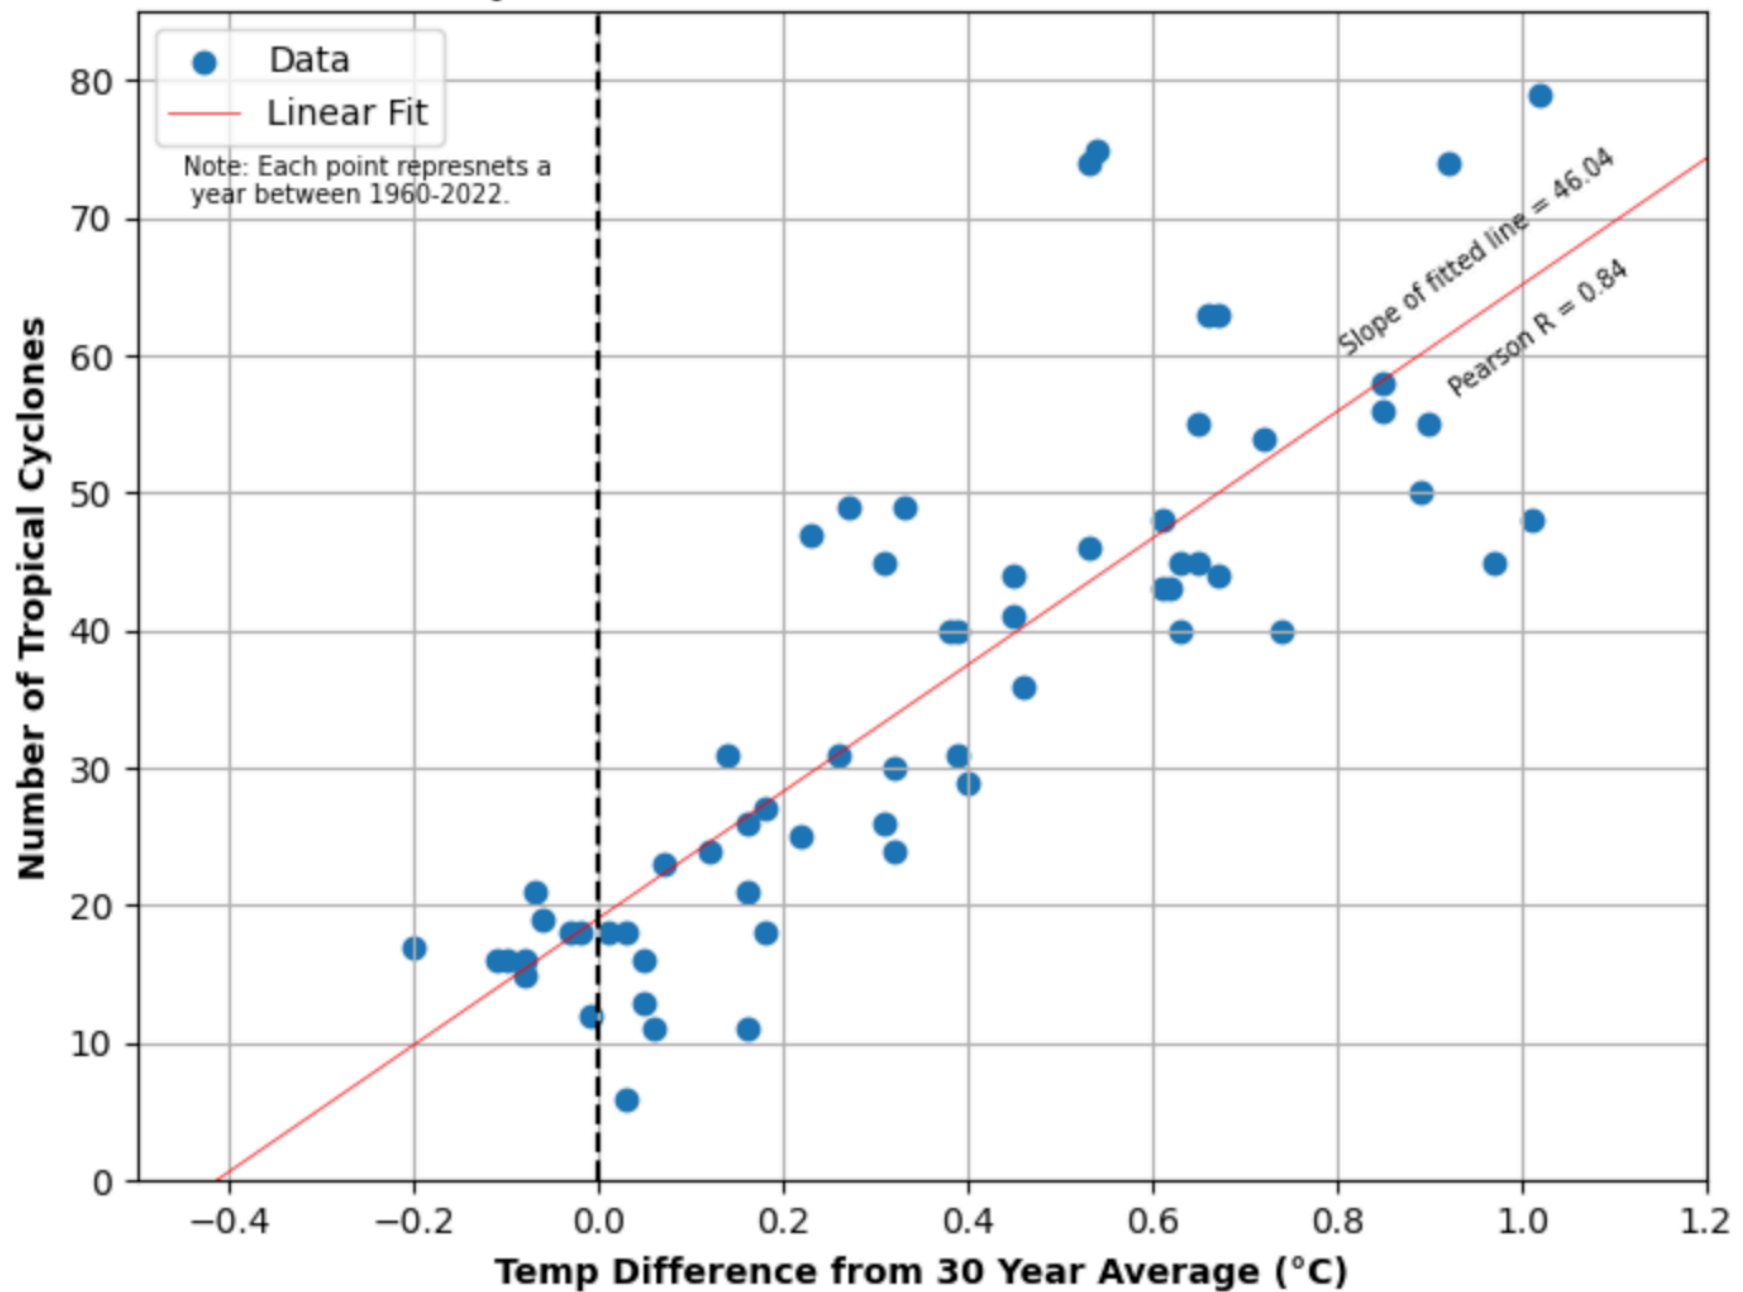

Figure 3: Rising temperatures are the reason for increased hurricane occurrence. The slope of the fitted line estimates that a global rise in temperature of 0.1°C results in an average of 4.6 more tropical cyclones globally.